

Dear Sirs, Mesdames:

I read today in my local newspaper, the Twin Cities Star Tribune, that Sinclair Broadcasting has decided to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election.

The timing of this documentary will not allow any chance for reply. If there are unsubstantiated allegations, of course, this would greatly skew the election results. The FCC must stop this.

Sinclair and other broadcast companies use the public airwaves free of charge. They are obligated by law to serve the public interest, as you well know. This unchallengeable documentary, if allowed to air, would violate the public interest and corrupt the election process which this great nation depends on. It doesn't matter whether you support Kerry or Bush--- if one broadcaster is allowed to subvert the election by misusing the power over the airwaves

which our country
has granted them,
the whole world will
wonder whether the
next president is
the legitimate
choice of the
people. The FCC
must act, perhaps by means of a temporary
suspension of the KMWB license until
an investigation can
clarify whether the
public airwaves are
being abused.

We can be grateful
that the public
airwaves are under
the supervision of
an agency which has demonstrated its
diligence and
independence
throughout the last 7 decades.

Thank you.
